Handi-Treads Voted "People's Choice" Winner at 2009 Chicago Innovation Awards

Handi-Treads, a unique safety product developed by Handi-Products, Inc., was one of the top five vote-getters in an online ballot conducted as part of the annual Chicago Innovation Awards event held in late October.

This local recognition for Handi-Treads (www.handitreads.com) follows the receipt of a 2009 "Retailer's Choice" award as one of the hottest new products at the National Hardware Show this past June.

Over 250 Chicago-area firms -- large and small, public, private and non-profit -- submitted products or services for consideration in the program that recognizes significant innovations and highlights the creative spirit of the Chicago area. Of this number, 75 finalists were chosen and a panel of judges ultimately selected ten winners of the Chicago Innovation Award.

This year's winners selected by the judges included comScore, Inc., Groupon, TripLite, the Art Institute of Chicago's Modern Wing and the Robotic Surgery Program at the University of Chicago.

Handi-Treads was among five additional products which garnered the most votes via an online balloting procedure on the Innovation Award website and were designated "People's Choice" winners. Over 11,000 votes in total were cast.

"Handi-Treads are simple, clever products that prove that innovation isn't limited to high-tech firms or large companies with substantial research budgets," said Tom Kuczarski, founder of the Chicago Innovation Awards.

"We are extremely pleased and honored by this award," said Thom Disch, CEO of Handi-Products. "Voters recognized that Handi-Treads are a significant improvement over existing methods of preventing slip-and-fall accidents caused by the wet, snowy and icy conditions that we have in Chicago."

Handi-Treads are 1/8" thick dimpled aluminum strips that can be installed in a few minutes on stairs, decks, walkways, porches, ramps and other potentially slippery surfaces. The product comes in a variety of size and colors and carries a lifetime warranty.
